

HOMework

Do you want to stay smart? There is a debate on if homework should be banned from schools. Homework is not fun, but needed to stay smart. That's why I believe that homework should be allowed in schools. My reasons are homework helps you stay smart, it helps you understand topics, helps you stay organized and makes life skills. Homework is important to the mind and skills.

First of all homework helps you stay smart. Homework helps you get good scores on tests and the good grade stays with you. This means you get to go to a good college and get extra smart because you have experienced tough assignments. It helps you get good grades and be smart. It also helps you understand concepts needed to get a good job. If you have homework, it distracts you from stress in sports because you have a fun project for homework. Homework is important because it gets you good grades on tests.

Secondly, homework keeps you organized. Education.com states that homework helps you stay organized when under stress. This website also states that homework keeps you organized and ready for the upper grades. This is important because you need to be prepared for big assignments. This helps understand what needs to be done everyday. Like Banking you need to have the math skills to count money and bills. This is why staying organized is important.

Thirdly, homework helps understand the concepts in school. Homework may not be fun, but it is important. Homework helps the student understand what they are doing. It also develops new concepts that help later when they have a long and hard assignment. Homework also helps the student focus when they have a hard task. This also makes concepts later in life. Homework also helps you get a good job. This is why it's important to have the concept.

Finally, homework helps build life skills. If you wanted to be a poet, you'll need to have good writing skills to be able to rhyme and draft papers. If you wanted to be a banker, you'll need good math skills like adding and multiplying. Practicing these concepts in homework helps them get better in these subjects. Homework can get you a good job. You'll need a good job to get a good house and live a good life. This is the final reason we need homework.

These are the reasons homework is needed. I think these are important reasons because these skills are needed later in life. Homework helps get you into a good college and get a good job. I still can understand why you might choose no homework, but I hope I changed your mind a little or a lot.